

Hearing [our] Voices

© 2007, Faculty of Communication and Culture, University of Calgary

A documentary film by Tom Everett, produced by Barbara Schneider, and featuring members of the research team.

This powerful and evocative film allows people directly affected by housing issues to speak about their experiences in their own words. It is based on interviews conducted with nine people who are affected by schizophrenia who took part in a participatory action research project on housing. Research team members describe their experiences, their involvement in a support group for people with schizophrenia, and what it means to them to be involved in the research project.

A poster book, Schizophrenia Hearing [our] Voices: Dilemmas of Care & Control was created by a group of people diagnosed with schizophrenia and beautifully illustrated by Colin McDonald. The main theme is the tension between care and control in relationships with medical and housing service providers.

Suitable for classroom use, conference presentations, and small discussion groups. Many of the issues raised here are complex. Discussion guide available.
