BEDSIDE AND COMMUNITY

50 Years of Contributions to the Health of Albertans by the University of Calgary

Edited by Diana J. Mansell, Frank W. Stahnisch, and Paula Larsson

Bedside and Community is the inside story of fifty years of health care and health research at the University of Calgary. Drawing on the first-person accounts of researchers, administrators, faculty, and students along with archival research, and faculty histories. This collection celebrates the many significant contributions the University of Calgary has made to the health of Albertans.

With contributions from the Cumming School of Medicine, the Faculty of Nursing, Faculty of Kinesiology, Faculty of Veterinary Medicine, Faculty of Environmental Design, Department of Psychology, and Indigenous Health Initiatives Bedside and Community is a truly collaborative history. Addressing the links between departments, the relationship between the university and the community, and evolving research and teaching methods, this book places the University of Calgary within a wider national context and shows how the unique health needs of Southern Alberta have been an important research and care leitmotiv.

DIANA J. MANSELL is a Canadian Nurse Historian now retired from the Faculty of Nursing at the University of Calgary.

FRANK W. STAHNISCH is the Alberta Medical Foundation/Hannah Professor in the History of Medicine and Health Care at the University of Calgary.

PAULA LARSSON is an Oxford-based scholar of health history with a focus on intersections of ethnicity, health and policy.

CREATING THE FUTURE OF HEALTH The History of the Cumming School of Medicine at the University of Calgary, 1967-2012

Robert Lampard, David B. Hogan, Frank W. Stahnisch, and James R. Wright Jr.

Founded on the recommendation of the Royal Commission on Health Services in 1964 the Cumming School has, from the very beginning, focused on innovation and excellence in health education. With a pioneering focus on novel, responsive and systems-based approaches, it was one of the first faculties to pilot multi-year training programs in family medicine and remains one of only two three-year medical schools in North America.

Drawing on interviews with key players and extensive research into documents and primary material, Creating the Future of Health traces the history of the school through the leadership of its Deans. This is a story of perseverance through fiscal turbulence, sweeping changes to health care and health care education, and changing ideas of what health services are and what they should do. It is a story of triumph, of innovation, and of the tenacious spirit that thrives to this day at the Cumming School of Medicine.

FACULTY OF NURSING ON THE MOVE Nursing at the University of Calgary, 1969-2004

Geertje Boschma

Starting with the dramatic changes in health care policy after the Second World War, Faculty of Nursing on the Move establishes the role of nursing education as pivotal to a thriving health care industry. It provides a historical analysis of the Faculty of Nursing at the University of Calgary, in contrast and comparison to the broader evolution of academic nursing in Canada.

Exploring how the Faculty of Nursing has responded to important social trends and ongoing changes in health care policy and nursing education, the challenges of developing an academic unit within larger educational and health care structures, and paying special attention to the interrelationships between nursing education and women's studies, Faculty of Nursing on the Move will illuminate historical and contemporary nursing issues.
